Volunteers Needed

In years past Brad Arch manned the Society's table at the annual Garden State Stamp Show sponsored by the New Jersey Stamp Dealers Association. With Brad's passing, we need volunteers. The Show will be held at the Wayne Manor, Route 23 South, Wayne, New Jersey on January 5-7, 2001, Friday 11:00-6:00, Saturday 12:00-5:00, Sunday 10:30-4:00. If you would like to assist, contact Bob Rose and let him know what time is good for you.

Society Literature Available

Through the help and assistance of Brad Arch's family, the Society was able to obtain all of its records and the accumulation of literature which Brad maintained at his Clifton residence. The back page of this issue of the Journal includes a list of available publications. I can assemble long-runs of back issues of the Journal. All publications are sent postpaid.

Editor's Note

This issue of the Journal combines the last two numbers for the year. I trust that the content, you will agree, makes for interesting reading. I have purposely avoided "filler" pages. To maintain the quality of the Journal, I NEED ARTICLES NOW. One thought, how about a photocopy or scan of your favorite cover and a description of its place in New Jersey Postal History?

The Brad Arch Collection Auction Review

by Robert G. Rose

The Brad Arch Collection of New Jersey postal history was sold at public auction by the Robert A. Siegel Auction Galleries in New York on June 28 and 29, 2000. The Arch Collection consisted of 434 lots which brought a hammer price of $330,000 plus a ten percent buyer's premium. I attended the first day of the sale. What follows is a summary of some of the significant realizations.

The unique use of the 5¢ New York postmaster's provisional from Jersey City, lot 865, opened at $3,500 and was hammered down at $4,250. As expected, the strongest prices were seen in Brad's outstanding array of the 1847 Issue which was propelled by spirited floor bidding by agents representing several well-heeled collectors. At least one of these collectors is reported to be a wealthy European who has amassed over a thousand 1847 covers representing almost ten percent of the total 1847's on record! The following are representative examples with the opening bid shown in parenthesis followed by the hammer price:

Lot 905	5¢	Manuscript Cross Keys ($800)	$1,250
Lot 906	5¢	Newark on Valentine cover ($2,500)	$4,500
Lot 908	5¢	Newark with integral "10," horizontal pair ($1,200)	$4,500
Lot 913	5¢	New Brunswick, Black handstamp and grid ($1,200)	$3,500
Lot 914	5¢	New Brunswick, Red handstamp and grid ($1,500)	$3,500
Lot 915	5¢	Newton, Red handstamp and grid ($1,500)	$2,600
Lot 916	5¢	Paterson, Orange-Red handstamp and grid, "Paid" ($950)	$3,000
Lot 918	5¢	Princeton, Black handstamp and boxed "5" ($950)	$2,100
Lot 919	5¢	Princeton Green handstamp and boxed "5" ($2,400)	$3,500

Lot 925	5¢	Rahway, Red handstamp and grid ($750)	$2,800
Lot 928	5¢	Trenton, stamp with sheet margin, Blue handstamp ($800)	$3,250

A spreadsheet prepared by Robert Zanoni, which includes prices realized for all of Arch's New Jersey's 1847 usages, and which updates Brad's monograph is included at the end of this article.

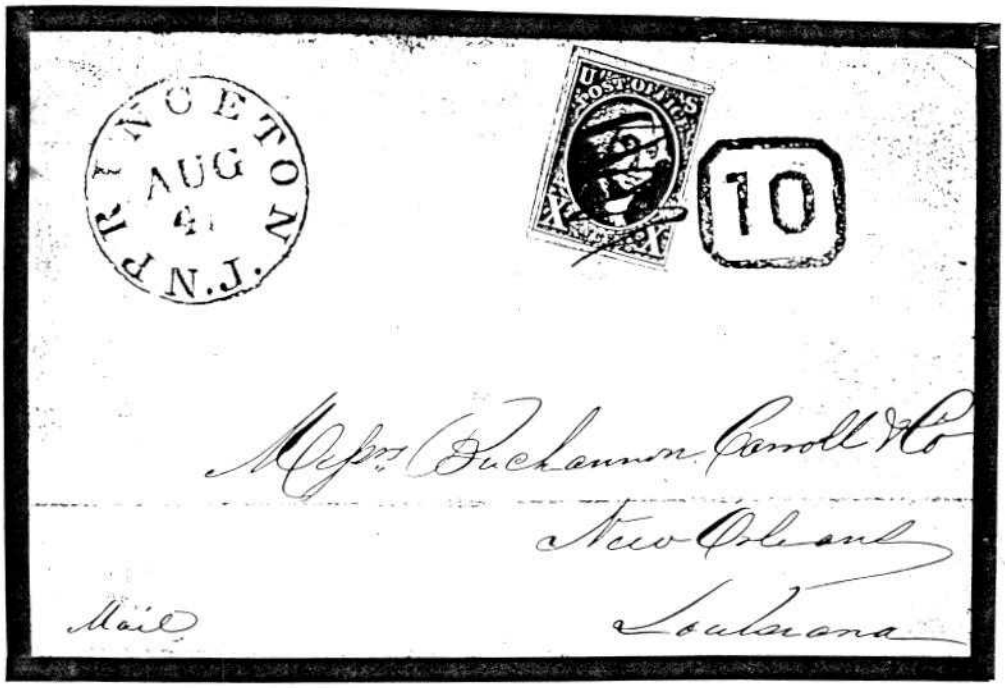
The Arch Collection included a total of seven 5¢ pairs of the first issue. In addition to the horizontal pair from Newark listed above, a vertical pair, lot 926, with a manuscript Red Bank postmark ($1,500) fetched $2,300. The horizontal sheet margin pair from Trenton to Germany, lot 927, the only foreign 1847 usage known from New Jersey, Ex-Ishikawa ($6,500), sold for $12,000. (Figure No. 1). this was the highest price for any 1847 cover in the Arch collection. The sale also included four of the six reported covers from the Habersham correspondence, each with a vertical pair of the 5¢ from Princeton to Savannah, lots 921-924. Hammer prices ranged from $2,700 to $6,000 based on condition.

Four 10¢ covers were included in the sale, including two of the three reported covers from the Rev. Samuel Bissell correspondence from Newark to Twinsburgh, Ohio, both Ex-Creigton Hart. The first, lot 911, with an orange-red handstamp and grid, opened at $4,750 and was hammered down at $7,500, and the second, with a red handstamp and grid opened at $2,500 and sold for $5,750.



(Figure 2) According to the Philatelic Foundation, the 10 cent stamp did not originate on the cover and the black manuscript tying the stamp to the cover is not genuine.

The other two 10¢ covers in the sale, lots 917 and 920, were the unique usage from Pennington and the Princeton cover with boxed "10" to New Orleans from the Buchannon and Carroll correspondence, Ex-Sampson, (Figure No. 2) both came back from the Philatelic Foundation with certificates stating that the stamps had not originated on the covers. If any readers have any information concerning the bona fides of these covers, please let me know. With this unhappy news, the total of genuine 10¢ New Jersey usages is now down to a total of four covers, all used from Newark: the three Rev. Bissell covers and the cover with four 10¢ singles used to Ohio with a Mutual Benefit Life Insurance corner card.

Brad's 1869 collection was extensive in terms of both scope and number. Condition, when combined with interesting or unusual usages, resulted in strong prices. Some examples follow:

Lot 1071	1¢ and 3¢	Trenton to Paris ($2,000)	$2,300
Lot 1172	1¢ and 3¢	Strip of three, Lambertville to Paris ($1,200)	$1,700
Lot 1186	2¢ and 15¢ Black F. Grill	Jersey City to HongKong ($2,500)	$4,000
Lot 1219	6¢ and 1p G.B. Red	Elizabeth to Liverpool ($500)	$2,200

(Figure 3) The unique usage of the 30 cent 1869 Issue from New Jersey sold for $21,000 plus 10% commission, the highest price for any cover in the Arch Collection.

The collection included four 10¢ 1869 covers from the Dennis correspondence used from Newark with a printed address to "Beirut, Syria." Three of these covers, lots 1227-29, with pairs of the 10¢ brought from $3,250 to $6,500 based on condition. The fourth cover, with a strip of three, lot 1226, featured on the front cover of the sale catalogue, opened at $3,500 and was hammered down at $7,500. A strip of three of the 12¢ 1869, lot 1256, Phillsburgh to Singapore, Ex-Knapp & Ishikawa opened at $1,600 and sold for $4,250. The highlight of Brad's collection, the unique usage of the 30¢ 1869 stamp from New Jersey, the Egg Harbor City cover to Switzerland opened at $15,000 and sold for a hammer price of $21,000. (Photo No. 3). This was the highest price for any cover in the Arch collection.

Among first day usages from New Jersey, the 2¢ Red Brown (#210), lot 1288 from Bloomingdale sold for $1,600 and the Tranquility, first day of the same stamp, lot 1289, fetched $1,300. A 5¢ rose error (#505), the middle stamp in a strip of three tied by a Bergenfield duplex, opened at $700 and was bid up to $2,500. A 3¢ Executive Official, lot 1248, used from Long Branch and addressed in President Grant's hand sold for $2,600. The 6¢ Justice, lot 1352, from Newark with a U.S. Attorney's office corner card sold for $1,200.

The Arch Collection contained a remarkable group of New Jersey local posts and express usages. Against an estimate of $300-$400, two folded letters with Baldwin's Newark Express black on green labels to New York, lot 1570, sold for $700. Six covers with the 1¢ Black Bayonne City Dispatch, (#9L1), lots 1574-1579, were included in the sale. Two of these covers, used in rare combination with banknote issues, lots 1574 and 1575, brought

$2,200 and $1,300. Two singles of the Bayonne City Dispatch, lot 1576, sold for $1,400 and the rare 1¢ purple on amber entire, (#9LU1) sold for a modest $675 against a $1,000-$1,500 estimate. The 1¢ Hackney & Bolte Penny Post tied by an Atlantic City duplex canceled together with a 2¢ Red Brown (#210), lot 1775, on a locally used cover, Ex-Hollowbush, brought $4,500 against a $2,000-$3,000 estimate.

The most remarkable offering in the locals were four covers with Jenkins' Camden Dispatch stamps. Three of the four included examples of either Halstead Type 3 or 4 of the 1¢ Black (#89L1). An example on a large valentine cover to a local street address, lot 1821, sold for $3,500. A remarkable rarity, the 1¢ Black on Grayish, Typset, (#89L3), of which there are only two examples known on cover, lot 1825, Ex-Ferrary, Caspary and Middendorf sold for $16,000 against a $5,000-$7,000 estimate. (Figure No. 4).

The sale was rounded out by a strong showing of New Jersey town markings including nearly 80 individual lots and 25 county collections and group lots drawn primarily from Brad's outstanding exhibition collection of "DPO's". The majority were sold within the range of the estimated values.

By almost any measure, the sale of the Arch Collection was a great success. That wonderful collection, a lifetime in the making, has literally been dispersed to the four corners of this earth. The provenance "Ex-Arch" will be a lasting tribute to Brad's philatelic acumen and his passion for collecting.

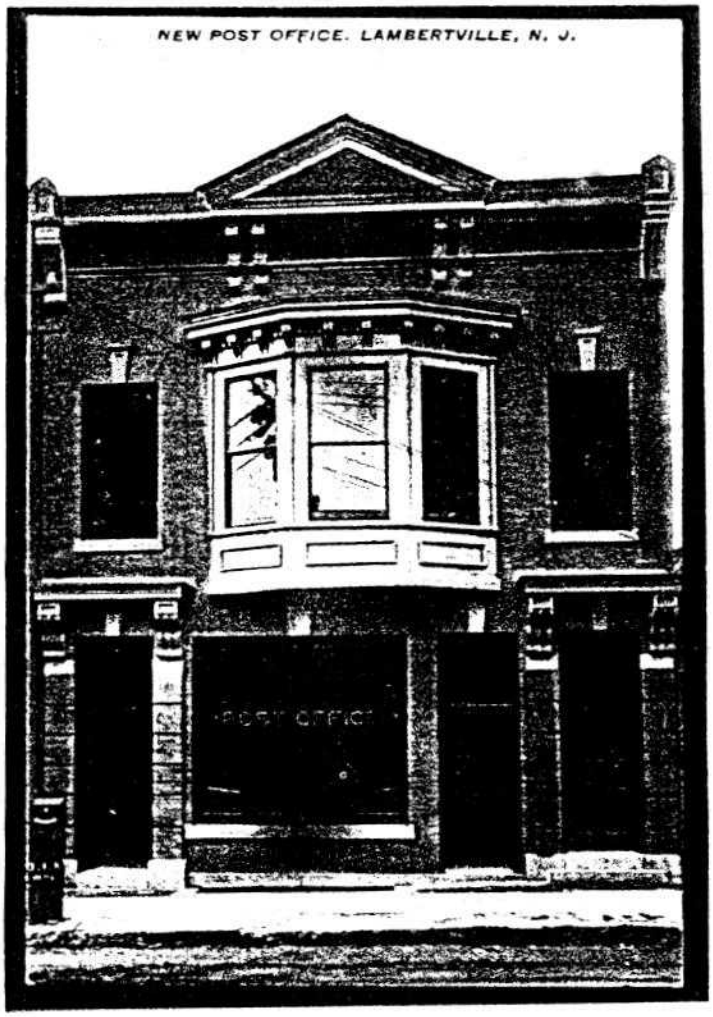
City Delivery Lambertville, New Jersey

by James Walker



The new post office at Lambertville opened for business in 1908. Located at 11 North Union Street, it was the first permanent home for the service in town. The credit for this and other improvements yet to come belonged to the Postmaster James D. Mackay.

Appointed to office in March of 1906, Mackay was a forward-thinking businessman, twice elected to City Council and a member of many local civic and fraternal organizations.

JAMES D. MACKAY,
Postmaster.

Home delivery was a natural next step for the town. Incorporated in 1849, Lambertville was unlike anywhere else in Hunterdon County at the time. Large working class neighborhoods of narrow streets and neat row houses developed around the town's diverse manufacturing center of factories and mills. Forty-two hundred people living within slightly more than one square mile made for a fine place for city delivery to begin in Hunterdon County.

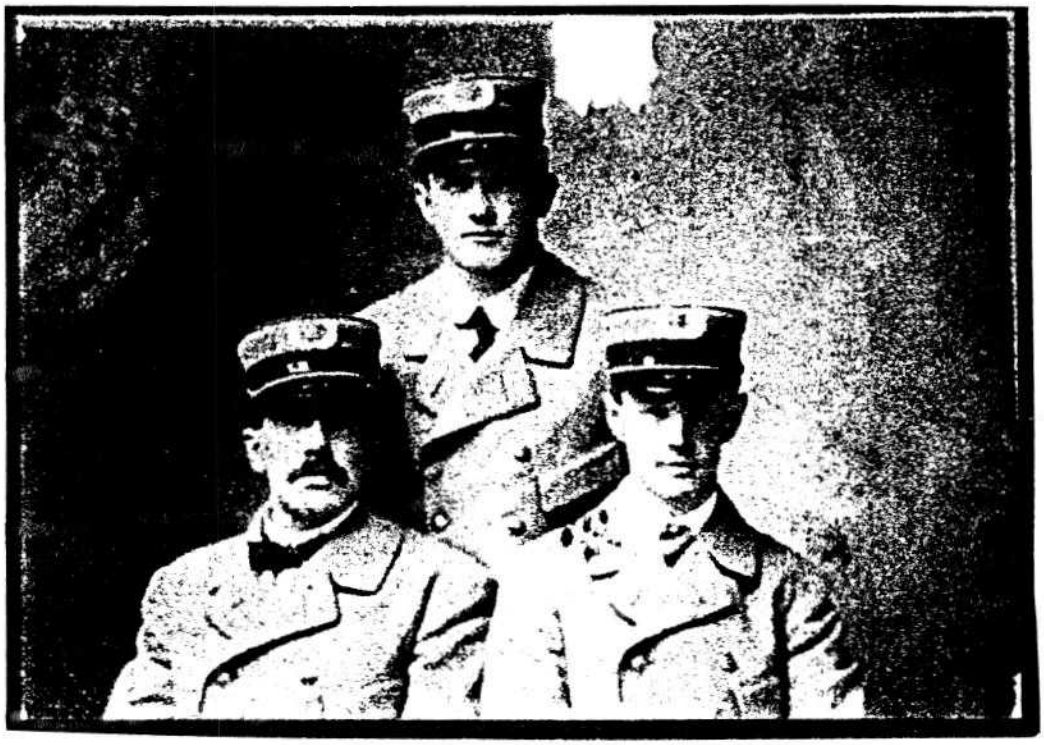
The October 8, 1908 issue of the Lambertville Beacon announced, "The First Assistant Postmaster General issued an order on Thursday, October 1st that a city delivery service will be established in Lambertville to become effective December 15, 1908.

Civil Service examinations were held at the public school located at North Main and Perry Street. Seventeen candidates took the exam for four positions, three carriers and one substitute. On January 14, 1909 the Beacon reported the names of the successful candidates: Fred Harbourt; Harry Harrison; Horace Williamson and John E. Moonan as substitute. Harbourt had gone to work for West Amwell Township in the meantime and declined the position. Moonan filled the carrier position but no one is listed as filling the substitute position.

Twenty mail boxes were erected at street corners around town and city delivery was inaugurated on February 1, 1909. The new carriers worked six days a week making three deliveries a day, 9:30 a.m., 2:30 and 5:30 p.m.

Three routes were laid out as shown on the City map reproduced in this article. Carrier No. 1 to deliver mail on Main Street and all streets east of George Street. Carrier No. 2 to deliver on Union Street and all streets west of George Street. And Carrier No. 3 to deliver on Bridge Street and all south to the city limits.

The February 4th issue of the Lambertville Beacon reported: "The new mail carriers are right on the job this week and look spick and span in their new uniforms. Although new to the work they have done exceptionally well."



The first City Carriers in Lambertville, N. J. February 1, 1909

Horace Williamson, Harry Harrison and John E. Moonan

The accompanying picture of the first mailmen in Lambertville has appeared occasionally in the local newspapers over the years. Many of the older folks in town filled in the details concerning Williamson and Moonan, but Harrison was a mystery and no one seemed to remember him. Not until their records arrived from the Federal Employee Records Center in St. Louis was the mystery solved.

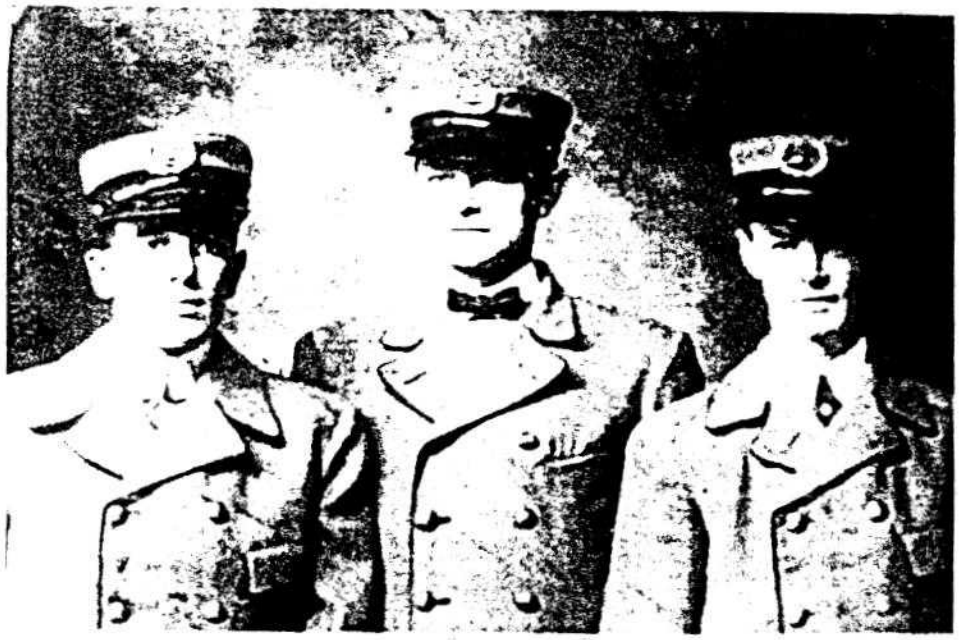
Apparently Harrison applied for a position with the railway mail service at about the same time he became a mail carrier at Lambertville. Copies of the federal records which accompany this article show his position as a carrier became effective February 1, 1909 and that he resigned his position with the Post Office effective August 31st of the same year. Harrison then moved to Trenton and had a long career with the railway mail service rising to the rank of Mail Clerk Grade 6 on the New York to Washington R.P.O. when, in May of 1944 he died of natural causes.



CITY MAIL CARRIERS 1909

HORACE WILLIAMSON , HARRY Q. CLARK , JOHN F. MOONAN

The second picture, illustrated above, which I hadn't seen before I began to write this article, shows Williamson and Moonan with Harrison's replacement, a man whose name I didn't know and couldn't be identified by anyone who saw this picture. Another mystery! A search of the Federal Register for 1911 indicates the only other mail carrier working at Lambertville was Harry Q. Clark at a lower rate of pay than Williamson and Moonan. A search of the Records Center for Clark have been fruitless.

A point of interest between the two photos: Their route numbers are indicated on their hats which do not show well in the accompanying illustrations. Moonan's Route Number changed from 3 to 1. The reason for this can be found in the 1910 census. He now was living on Church Street near Franklin within the area covered by Route #1. This change would be fine with the new man Clark since census records indicate he lived on Ferry Street which was within Route #3. As for Williamson, he lived on Delaware Avenue near Clinton Street which lay within his Route #2.

Since the Postmaster position often being a political appointment, the day-to-day operations of the local post office fell to a long-time employee. At Lambertville the job of Assistant Postmaster was held by Olive Phillips from August 1919 until her retirement on November 1, 1939. She had gone to work at the Lambertville Post Office in 1904. Moonan told the story of how Miss Phillips would often have the carriers empty their pockets after a delivery. If they had more money than she thought necessary, they had better have a good explanation. At a time when people often sent cash in the mail, the implications were obvious.

Despite a tough boss, the accompanying federal employment records of Williamson and Moonan show both men had long careers at the Lambertville Post Office. Williamson retired at age 68 in 1945, with thirty-six years of service. Moonan retired at age 63 in 1948, six months short of forty years of service. The retirement records of both men are signed by Lambertville Postmaster Edward Meskill, the sixth postmaster for whom they delivered the mail.

James D. Mackey, the progressive Postmaster who oversaw the start of city delivery at Lambertville, would go on to the position of City Solicitor, when in 1933, he was shot and killed by a defendant in his court on Bridge Street.

Should such employee be again transferred the second department will prepare an abstract setting forth the data contained in that received by it, with the addition of his record while in the second department, such abstract to be transmitted to the department to which he is transferred, a duplicate being retained.

In the case of a reinstatement, the department in which the employee is reinstated should apply to the establishment in which the former service was rendered for an abstract of record in the case. Statements of employees must not be accepted unless verified from official records.

3. In Table II show the amount deducted for the retirement fund during each fiscal year, or part of fiscal year, the employee was in your service.

A Brief Look at Postal Sub-Stations

by Dennis H. Pack

Postal sub-stations are the ancestors of our present-day contract postal units found at supermarket customer service counters, drugstores and a remarkably wide range of other businesses and non-profit organizations. They appear to have gotten their start in the 1880s with postal stations located in businesses and staffed by employees of the business. At that time, their titles usually included the designation "station." Other stations were staffed by employees of the Post Office Department and referred to as carrier or full stations.

The naming and designation of stations and sub-stations was inconsistent until 1897. Both stations and sub-stations were given local names and named with letters of the alphabet. The first numbered sub-stations appeared in New York City in 1890. The 1897 Report of the Postmaster General differentiated between stations and sub-stations:

> Stations and substations are established in the larger cities to facilitate the delivery of mails, and to furnish postal facilities for patrons remote from the main office. Carrier stations distribute and dispatch mail and transact money-order and registry business, and have all the facilities of a free-delivery post-office. Substations are usually located in drug stores, transact money-order and registry business, and handle stamps and postal supplies. The larger carrier stations are on a parity with many offices of the first class in point of stamp sales and money-order and registry business. (PMG Report, 1897, p. 85).

The duties of stations and sub-stations were explained, but there was no mention of how they were named until later in 1897 when the Postmaster General announced:

> The following classification of stations and sub-stations is hereby adopted:
> All stations or sub-stations, as now > designated, that receive and dispatch mail, either by carriers or through boxes and general delivery, will be known as stations and will be designated by letters or local names.

> Sub-stations issue and pay money orders, register letters and parcels, sell postal supplies, but do not deliver mail, and will be designated by numbers. (Postal Bulletin 5401, Nov. 15, 1897).

A uniform policy was adopted for designating and naming stations and sub-stations. Stations receive and dispatch mail, sub-stations do not. Stations might house carriers, have box delivery or handle general delivery mail. Sub-stations do not.

The Postmaster General further clarified the designations in his 1898 report:

> Stations and substations are established in the larger cities to expedite the delivery of mails and to give postal accommodations to patrons living remote from the main office. Substations, designated by numbers, issue and pay money orders, register letters and parcels, and sell postal supplies, but do not deliver mails. Stations, designated by letters or local names, receive and dispatch mails, transact money-order and registry business, sell stamps, etc., and where carriers are attached, have all the facilities of a free-delivery post office. (PMG Report, 1898, p. 116).

The designation "sub-station" was discontinued in 1902 when the Postmaster General modified the 1897 order:

> All stations will issue and pay money-orders, register letters and parcels and sell postal supplies.
> Stations that receive and dispatch mails, either by carriers or through boxes and general delivery, will be designated by letters or local names, as 'Station A' or 'Austin Station.'

> Stations that are not provided with facilities for receiving and dispatching mails, will be designated by numbers, as 'Station No. 1.' (Order 349, Mar. 31, 1902, in Postal Bulletin 6731, Apr. 2, 1902).

Sub-stations were created by the hundreds between 1897 and 1902. At the beginning some stations that had been named with local names or letters of the alphabet were redesignated sub-stations. Even some post offices were replaced by sub-stations. However, most of the sub-stations that followed were located in businesses, often drugstores.

Since sub-stations, received registered mail, sold money orders and stamps, but did not dispatch mail, it might be expected that their postal markings would be limited to Money Order Business (M.O.B.) cancels and registration markings. Registration markings appear to be the most common markings of sub-stations, and a few M.O.B. markings are found, but some duplex markings of the types used by named or alphabet stations are also encountered. These were probably used on letters that were handed to a clerk for mailing, but not on all mail that might be deposited there. In addition, the author has seen one DCDS received sub-station marking and several non-standard markings that are identifiable as sub-station markings only because they are dated between 1897 and 1902. Sub-station makings are not common, but they certainly are not rare. They are not often offered by dealers probably because of collector's limited demand for them.

Some cities that had a station, rather than a post office, complained because the name of the parent post office was featured in their postmarks, so, in 1908, the Postmaster General distinguished between "branches" and "stations". Those stations that were located outside the corporate limits of the parent post office were designated branches and listed independently in the Postal Guide. Stations inside the corporate limits of the parent post office remained stations.

The First Assistant Postmaster General first referred to "classified" stations and "contract" stations in his 1910 report to Congress. Classified stations were staffed by career Post Office Department personnel, while contract stations were staffed by employees of the businesses in which they were located. Contract stations have evolved into the contract postal units found today in many businesses.

Stations and sub-stations were created by order of the Postmaster General. These orders were recorded by hand in a series of journals. Starting in 1894, the orders were published in the Daily Bulletin of Orders Affecting the Postal Service, more commonly called by its current title, the Postal Bulletin. The author reviewed all of the Postal Bulletins between 1894 and 1902 and recorded the information concerning the establishment, change and discontinuation of the sub-stations mentioned there. In addition, he consulted some of the Orders (Journals) of the Postmaster General that were published in 12 volumes between 1879 and 1905. A comprehensive listing of sub-stations originally published in La Posta has been excerpted to provide a listing of New Jersey sub-stations. In addition other stations created during the same period have been added. Despite care taken in the research, the listings are probably incomplete. Readers are encouraged to consult original sources to satisfy themselves of the accuracy of these listings and to fill in any missing information.

Approximately 20 New Jersey cities are reported in the Postal Bulletin to have had sub-stations. Newark had 19, Jersey City 17, Paterson 13, and Camden 12, to name those cities with a dozen or more. The earliest were nine sub-stations of Jersey City established March 1, 1895. The only other New Jersey sub-station created that year was Sub-Station 01, formerly Station A, of Bayonne. The author is interested in receiving photocopies of any New Jersey sub-station markings. Please send them to Dennis Pack, 1915 Gilmore Ave., Winona, MN 55987. The author also welcomes questions or comments on his research.

Sub-stations are an interesting phase in the development of postal services in the US. Their existence heralded a uniform method of naming and designating dependent branch offices. During the five years of their existence they provided postal services in hundreds of businesses throughout the country. Their scarce postal makings remind of this and open a window to the past.

Readers who are interested in reading about sub-stations in more detail are invited to read a series of articles by the author in La Posta: A Journal of Post History, published by Richard W. Helbock. The articles, entitled "Those Elusive Postal Sub-Stations," appeared in the September and November 1999, and January and March 2000 issues.
